

ABSTRACT

A graphical user interface for and method of interfacing with a controller of test equipment to effect desired controller settings including, but not limited to protocol traffic and signal quality. The graphical user interface being operable to facilitate the setting of a variety of test parameters relating to traffic, as well as a variety of test parameters relating to optics.